THE FIRST NUMBER OF THE FORTNIGHTLY REVIEW.

Edited by George Haven Lewis.
Was published in London May 10, and will arrive in New-York about the 20th inst.

It is a new English Journal similar to the "Paris" Review, and abounds in treating of subjects which interest cultivated and thoughtful readers, and published at intervals which are neither too distant for influence on the passing questions, nor too close for the expression of individual opinion.

The FORTNIGHTLY REVIEW will address the cultivated readers of all classes by its treatment of topics specially interesting to each; and it is hoped that the latitude which will be given to the expression of individual opinion may return it acceptable to many various publics.

The first number of THE FORTNIGHTLY REVIEW is to be the organ of the unbiased expression of many and various minds on topics of general interest. Politics, Literature, Philosophy, Science, and Art. Each Contribution will have the gravity of an average responsibility. Each article will be signed, and the name of the author will be given in full. His sincerity, but will claim the privilege of perfect freedom of opinion, unbiased by the opinions of the Editor or of follow-contributors. The First Number will open with a new story by Mr. Anthony TROLLOPE, which will be continued throughout the year.

The FORTNIGHTLY REVIEW will be published on the 1st and 15th of every month.
